Blue skies at last

After days of rainy, chilly weather — including a storm that brought catastrophe for much of the state — the sun finally burned bright in the sky across the Upstate on Tuesday. The South Carolina Botanical Garden in Clemson, which was fortunate to suffer minimal damage from the weekend rainfall, was an ideal spot to enjoy Tuesday's weather for Ellie Smetana, left, and Jacob Sierad, right.

PHOTOS BY REX BROWN | THE JOURNAL