

Special to the Daily Journal/Messenger

Bo Bowden, head professional at The Reserve at Lake Keowee, prepares to send off more than 100 participants in the annual Bi-Lo Charity Classic Golf Tournament held recently. The private, Jack Nicklaus-designed course was one of 12 host sites for the one-day tournament. "It is an honor to be able to host an event that touches so many people and supports so many wonderful organizations," said Bowden. The tournament, which has raised over $44 million over the past 26 years, is the largest tournament held at The Reserve.