

Cherokee Museum gets donation

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

Jerry Wolfe, center, an Elder in the Eastern Band of Cherokee, recently donated a set of stickball sticks to the Museum of the Cherokee under construction in Walhalla. Flanking Wolfe are Museum Director Dave LaVere, left, and Museum Curator Luther Lyle. Native Americans used the sticks for recreation as a predecessor to the modern game of Lacrosse.