Cliffs showcase offers home design ideas

By Cheryl P. Allen
STAFF WRITER
callen@greenvillenews.com

YOU CAN GO

- What: Home and Living Showcase
- When: Noon to 4 p.m. May 2 and noon to 5 p.m. May 3
- Where: The Village at The Cliffs at Mountain Park
- Admission: Free; suggested $10 donation to benefit Habitat for Humanity-Greenville County
- For more: 864-371-3020, celebrate20@cliffscommunities.com or www.mountainparkvillage.com

You can check out the latest trends in home design amid pristine scenery – and contribute to a worthy cause at the same time – at the upcoming Home and Living Showcase hosted by The Cliffs Communities.

The event is planned May 2-3 at The Village at The Cliffs at Mountain Park, as part of The Cliffs Communities' 20th year celebration. Proceeds will benefit Habitat for Humanity-Greenville County.

Local and regional vendors will present information, product samples and demonstrations on topics ranging from outdoor furnishings to high-tech security systems.

"In years past, the Home and Living Showcase has been a signature, invitation-only event that's proved popular among our current and prospective property owners," said Jamie Prince, spokeswoman for The Cliffs Communities Inc.

This year, the event has been expanded and is open to the public.

Visitors can get information about architectural design, outdoor living, landscape and interior design, irrigation systems, solar energy and other green living trends.

"I think there is an educational part of this, too, because a lot of people have the perception that green living is expensive," Prince said. "And it's actually not expensive and can be tailored to any budget."

The showcase will allow visitors to connect with local vendors, all under one roof, said Lucas Anthony, vice president of construction and development for The Cliffs Communities. "It's also a wonderful chance to support local businesses … and see first-hand, the level of craftsmanship and talent in our own back yard."

The Greenville News
greenvilleonline.com
Saturday
APRIL 25, 2009

L

The Cliffs Communities

The Cliffs Home and Living Showcase offers the latest information on home design.