Earth Day event set at World of Energy in Seneca

Staff Reports

Wednesday, April 21, 2010

SENECA — The World of Energy at Oconee Nuclear Station will host Homeschoolers Helping the Earth on Thursday.

The free event is scheduled to run from 8:45 a.m., when sign-in will begin, until noon for home-schooled students and their families. Students needed to be registered by March 26 to participate.

The planned activities include interactive presentations about renewable energy sources and energy efficiency, an Earth Day arts and crafts activity, a nature trail scavenger hunt and self-guided tours through The Story of Energy exhibit. Students will also receive a take-home activity packet.

Families are encouraged to pack a picnic lunch to enjoy at the nuclear station's Lake Keowee picnic shelter.

The World of Energy is at 7812 Rochester Highway in Seneca and can be reached at (800) 777-1004.
