SALEM — The Salem Town Council announced this week that the town will be getting an extended facelift.

In addition to the landscape and park improvements to the community center, the new walking trails, a relocated gazebo, shrubs, new swing set and cobblestone paths are only a small part of a larger vision.

Earth Day inspired the town to take an extra "clean" step forward as Kim Alexander, representative from Salem Town Hall, said the city will spend April 22 making another positive change.

"We have numerous volunteers, organizations, churches and communities that will be joining us in and around the downtown area," she said. "There will be trash pick-up, tree planting, placement of new flower beds and numerous businesses will be getting a fresh coat of paint. We just want to put a little more pride back in our town."
