Home building strong

Home construction has finally begun a gradual comeback and should add to the nation's economic growth in 2011. Builders in November broke ground on homes — houses and apartments alike — at an annual rate of 685,000, the government said Tuesday.