

It's a Full Moon at The ARTS Center of Clemson

PHOTOS BY REX BROWN | THE JOURNAL

An exhibit from Full Moon Artists is on display through March 4 at The ARTS Center of Clemson. The artists featured include wood turner Warren Carpenter, folk-art painter Robin Anne Cooper and potters Stan DuBose, Cindy Hart, Mike Hart and Chris Troy. Each artist has a different approach, point of view and design aesthetic, and they've joined together to stretch the boundaries of ordinary materials. Since it was created in 2011, Full Moon Artists has hosted 10 open studio tours, created four custom trees for the Hospice Festival of Trees which to date have raised more than $5,000 and continued to support local art in many ways. For more information on Full Moon Artists, visit fullmoonartists.com. The ARTS Center Gallery is located at 212 Butler St. in Clemson. For more information, call (864) 633-5051 or visit explorearts.org.

