The Reserve seeks artists for community projects

FOR THE JOURNAL

SUNSET — The Reserve at Lake Keowee Community Foundation invites visual, cultural and performing artists to apply for the 2012 Artist in Residence position and/or the foundation's annual artist/lecture series.

The programs seek talented artists from a variety of creative backgrounds to be showcased throughout the year.

The Artist in Residence program offers artists the opportunity to interact with the upstate community while displaying their craft. The residency lasts up to one week and includes the artist's stay during that time. To apply or learn more visit www.ReserveAtLakeKeowee.com. The submission deadline is extended to Jan. 31.

The artist/lecture series aims to showcase a variety of cultural art forms. For more information or to recommend an artist, visit the RLK Community Foundation page and click on the recommendation form on the right side of the page.
