Here are 3 South Carolina attractions alternatives that you may want to consider:

Idea #1: Visit the Patients at the Sea Turtle Hospital. A part of the South Carolina Aquarium, the Sea Turtle Hospital is a very important part of the conservation of this beautiful and wonderful marine creature. Sea turtles share beaches with humans on a regular basis. Partly because of their close contact to humans, the turtles sometimes become sick or injured.

Idea #2: Visiting the Carriage Museum in the Beautiful City of Aiken. Aiken, South Carolina is one of the two largest cities located in the Central Savannah River Area, yet it is able to retain the small town flavor that so many visitors love. The city was even recognized by the National Civic League with an All America City Award. It is a great place to live and the perfect place to take a nice relaxing vacation. Visitors will find plenty of different things to see and do while there.

Idea #3: If you are looking for a beautiful place to enjoy outdoor activities and you also happen to like history, plan a visit to Keowee-Toxaway State Natural Area in South Carolina's northwestern mountains. During your visit, you can camp, hike, picnic, view wildlife and even go fishing and boating at nearby Lake Keowee. There are 1,000 acres of nature to explore at Keowee-Toxaway park, and an intriguing Cherokee museum is also on location.

As you have discovered, you have a wide choice of options available to your family when it is time to select that ideal South Carolina family vacation escape. Take your time to plan carefully what you want to do and where you want to go. Use a quality travel guide to help you discover that perfect South Carolina vacation. And you will find that you will experience a wonderful vacation with a lifetime of stories.
