SENECA — The World of Energy will host a free spring celebration featuring a petting zoo, bounce house and slide, face painters, a juggling and variety artist and a balloon twister.

The event, planned for April 8 from 10 a.m.-noon, is being held in tandem with the World of Energy's Festival of Eggs decorating contest.

The competition includes 22 decorating teams from nonprofits in the Upstate. Each team has decorated a plastic 16-inch egg with its own artistic flair. The eggs are on display at the World of Energy through April 14.

"We are excited about adding an egg hunt and spring celebration to our event roster," World of Energy manager Chris Rimel said. "We've packed a lot into two hours, and we think folks will be amazed by the artistry of the decorated eggs."

A spring-themed background photography spot will also be available for parents to take photos of their children.

The World of Energy will be open during the spring celebration for visitors to vote on their favorite egg. The top three winners will receive grants from Duke Energy.

The World of Energy is located at 7812 Rochester Highway in Seneca. For more information, call (864) 873-4600.
